Helen Wills To Start Comeback Trail On June 8

BERKELEY, May 7.—UP—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, one of the greatest women tennis players the world has known, will take the first step in her projected "comeback" June 8, it was learned today.

Mrs. Moody plans to enter the state tennis tournament here on that date, and if successful may go on to national events in the east, her former coach, William C. "Pop" Fuller, said.

Mrs. Moody has been playing practice sets since early this spring, and is reported to have had no trouble from the back injury which forced retirement from active competition.

Nothing was offered in return but there arose the sneaking suspicion that with this vast fund under control it would be an easy matter to build up a political machine to be used for the good of those who administered it. When such an accusation was not directly made, it was intimated very strongly and apparently found lodgment in the minds of people generally.

The supervisors and other

The setback was the appointment of a committee composed largely of anti-administration senators to investigate the State civil service. Although professedly offered in a spirit of co-operation to help improve the service, it was a left-handed blow at the chief executive the same. The committee will report to the legislature two years hence.

BRIDE BY LEGACY

CHAPTER XXXVI. "THERE are so many questions I want to ask," Mary said, as she stood with Don beside the window in the living room.

The officers had taken "Jared" and Carmie away, and Aunt Nettie and Jerry had discreetly left Mary and Don alone.

"There is just one I want to ask," Don said softly. "And that is?" Mary smiled, and looked in the circle of his arm.

"Do you love me?" "I do," Mary said simply. "But is that the only question you want to ask?" She was smiling up into his eyes.

"Then I'll have to ask another," she said firmly. "I almost don't want to ask you—I don't intend to risk it again. Don, will you marry me?"

A SHADOW passed over his face. "I'm still a very poor man, Mary, and you are very rich. If you marry me, you will be giving up a very fine life for a very poor one."

"I don't care," she said. "I want to marry you because you are the only man I love. And you are the only man who has ever loved me."

"How are they different? We love each other, don't we? That's all that matters. If you were ready to ask me to marry you before, why can't you now?"

"Well, for one thing, I'm worse than broke right now—I'm in debt," he said slowly.

"How did you get into debt?" Mary asked. "I made a lot of rash promises to an aviator a few days ago, and now I have to make good."

"Don, you must let me pay for that. It was for me you did it," Mary said.

"No," he said firmly. "I'll settle my debts myself. I love you, Mary, more than anything in the world, but I can't marry you and live on your money. I haven't the right either, to ask you to wait for me, but some day—I can make some money—I hope—I can make good."

"All right, Don," she whispered. "I suppose I'll just have to wait."

His arm tightened about her. "And now I'd better be getting along. I'm once more the Leader's star boy reporter and I've got to write my yarn about the sensational will expose."

Mary looked at him a moment, then suddenly burst out laughing. "Still making capital out of my troubles, aren't you?"

He grinned sheepishly. "A good newspaperman never suppresses a story."

MAKE A TOUR OF WORLD ON THURSDAY

This coming Thursday night, May 9, the rare privilege of taking a "trip around the world" will be open to all residents of Richmond. The directions are simple: Come to the Central Methodist church, corner Roosevelt and Twenty-first at 5:30 P. M. and get in line for "the best time ever."

The first stop will be "Italy," 218 Bissell avenue, the home of Mrs. Lucy Silvis. Here you will be served a famous Italian dish for an appetizer.

The next stop will be "Alaska," 7403 Rosalind avenue, home of Mrs. Elda Peterson. The delicious delicacy to be served there is open to conjecture. Suffice it to say, it will be something rather chilly with a warm congenial atmosphere, for dressing.

The third stop will be "Mexico," 2120 Roosevelt avenue, home of Mrs. Ann Seymore. You can be prepared for a rather warm reception there. Many delicious dishes immediately suggest themselves, but you'll have to satisfy your own curiosity by being one of those present, that's all.

And then the fourth and last "port of call" will be "America," the Central Methodist church. Some real, old-fashioned American food will be served, topped off with a musical program.

An honest-to-goodness Hill Billy orchestra will furnish the entertainment. Tickets for the round trip, thirty-five cents. Phone in your reservations to 3291-W. Please do it promptly.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, May 7.—There is prospect of a dramatic conflict again between Isidor Kresel and Max D. Steiner, two of the most illustrious lawyers in New York and long bitter enemies.

Unrelenting warfare has existed between the two legal experts for many years. They have been opposing each other in many of the most important cases of the past generation, with honors about evenly divided. Kresel once almost succeeded in having Steiner disbarred.

When the Bank of United States crash came a few years ago, Steiner had his revenge. In the suits growing out of that case he managed to convince a jury that Kresel was guilty of major offenses. Kresel was disbarred, fell victim to illness, and the shock contributed to the death of his wife soon after.

A few months ago, however, the Appeals justices reversed the conviction. Kresel was triumphantly reinstated and his practice resumed. Now he is heading the case of Ferdinand Baehner, who accuses Samuel Levy, Borough president of Manhattan, of fraud and misappropriation of funds as trustee of her son's estate. With Steiner as defense counsel, there may yet develop an intense drama having nothing to do with the actual case.

Kresel has a lot to balance in the record.

FUSS AND FEATHERS—The Communist group in New York manages to cause a good deal of commotion, but most of it is empty noise that doesn't get its makers very far. Their activity has been going on for quite a few years now but few people, including some of the Communists, take it seriously any longer.

Picketing the various consulates down around the Battery is one of their favorite outdoor sports. They march around, a delegation enters the building to see the consul and make whatever protest it happens to be this time. The police inform the consulate, the consulate says the consul is out, the police so inform the delegation, who agree the point a little while, and then go back to inform the demonstrators of what happened.

Then they sing, listen to some

I am running as an Independent Candidate for City Councilman, and if elected, promise to administer the affairs of the city to the very best of my ability and in accordance with my very best judgment.

I am for the most economical and efficient possible administration of city government. As a property owner, I favor the lowest possible tax consistent with the maintenance of the normal functions of a municipal government.

If the voters of the city indicate that they believe the Harbor Management Lease is improper and not to the best advantage of the city, I will support them in any adjustment or change in the harbor management the majority of the people indicate they desire. This is a matter, I feel, that the people themselves should decide.

I shall use my utmost endeavor to promote the prosperity of Richmond and all of her people.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

The User of Cocaine and Heroin Suffers Greatly From Weakness and Mental Aberration

THE person who has become the victim of the morphine habit is surely a pitiable object. He loses flesh, his memory fails, he is alternately happy or depressed and miserable. He cannot sleep when he is deprived of the drug, his nerves are jumpy and he suffers from a general weakness. His entire existence is bound up in the desire for the drug and he is in a constant state of mental and physical distress.

Cocaine is not so habit-forming, and very few become addicts to it. Cocaine is another drug that fastens itself on the habitual user. Many become addicts who have used it to relieve the distress and misery of the morphine habit or to overcome the effects of morphine-indulgence in alcohol.

The action of cocaine is directly opposite to that of morphine and heroin, as it is not a narcotic, but a stimulant which relieves exhaustion and depression. It is used very much in the treatment of catarrhs and sinusitis, and the habit may be acquired in that way, but generally, like heroin, it is deliberately taken by nervous and depressed persons, and the world of drugs it produces the worst effects of both drugs.

The combination of cocaine and heroin has the most injurious results, and is used by a great many of our most dangerous and unregenerate criminals, particularly gangsters and murderers. The first effects of cocaine are to relieve fatigue, inflate the personality, and induce a great sense of muscular and mental strength. It causes the user to feel that he can accomplish great things, and he becomes a great "I am," talks with great length on any subject, and tries to give the impression of being very brilliant and powerful.

The later effects are insomnia, muscular weakness, jerky movements of the arms, legs, and face muscles, while the mind turns to new feelings of persecution. Sufferers are best with hallucinations of light and hearing. They hear strange noises and conversations, and see things that are not there. This leads them to defend themselves for defense against these imaginary enemies and they become very dangerous.

They grow suspicious and morose and suffer from anxiety and dread. They lose flesh and get restless, excitable, weak mentally and physically. One of the most depressing sensations of these sufferers is the feeling of something crawling under the skin and they die and scratch and often cause severe sores and infections of the skin.

Another plant has just lately come into prominence in the United States, as a habit-forming drug. Like many other things, he last is the worst. It is known under many names, and has been an ingredient in some medical preparations for chronic headaches and many nervous disorders under the plant name of Cannabis Indica or Indian Hemp.

The common name for the drug is marijuana and it is the same as the Egyptian and Indian hashish. It is a weed which grows in almost any place in the United States and is usually grown secretly with other crops such as sugar beets, alfalfa, and corn.

It grows to a height of three or four feet and the leaves and blossoms are gathered and used in the form of cigarettes. In the south and west there is a large Spanish-American population, it is packed in tin cans, tobacco, it sells for three to five dollars, and is called "hay" or "marijuana" being sufficient to make thirty or forty cigarettes.

Guide to Charm SKIN COLORING DECIDES WHAT MAKE-UP TO USE

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EVERY girl is born with a definite skin coloring and there is little that can be done to change it. You shouldn't want to change it either, for it is usually color that blends best with the shade of your hair and eyes and lips.

You should make it a point, however, to choose cosmetics to match your natural coloring and wherever possible to emphasize its best tones. Choosing the right make-up is a fascinating problem for all of us, but it is more difficult for some to find the right things than it is for others.

The red-headed girl has a specially difficult problem. Her skin is usually the thin, sensitive type that requires special care to keep it smooth and velvety. Powder must be the right weight and texture and the right shade, and rouge must not only be the right shade, but it must be applied skillfully to emphasize the glow of autumn or red-gold tresses.

If you are the clear, skinned, autumn haired type, rouge should be used sparingly. Select a powder that is nearly matches your skin in tone and get a rouge with a slightly orange cast. The warm, soft russet and terra-cotta shades that I have been telling you about are grand for red-heads. Blue or blue-green eye shadow is best for you, although bronze may be used if your eyes are brown or hazel.

Freckles complicate the make-up problems of many red-heads. You should select a tinted foundation cream that is slightly darker than your skin and apply it evenly. Next apply rouge, and you will need a little more if you want to subdue the little brown spots that might show through your make-up. Use powder that matches your skin tones and is just a fraction of a shade lighter than your foundation preparation.

The girl with red-gold hair, however, has a pinkish skin which requires a little rouge. A clear red applied and blended softly into each cheek is best. In this case, too, a tinted foundation cream—only one that is a bit lighter—is also needed. Your powder should match your skin in tone. Use a medium or clear red lipstick and apply it lightly to give your lips the proper emphasis.

The most difficult type of red-head to make-up is the girl with a dash of flame in both her complexion and hair. She should select a rich beige shade of powder that will help to subdue the red in her skin. A cream or beige foundation cream will help conceal the natural flush. A slightly orange-red rouge should be used, but it should be applied sparingly. A darker lipstick is best.

The brows may need emphasis. If so, use brown eyebrow pencil or mascara to darken them slightly. Eye shadow will also make the eyes appear darker, brighter and larger.

Richard Boleslavski, Film Director, Has Life Story More Dramatic Than One He Supervises

WHAT makes a motion picture director? In the case of Richard Boleslavski, who has turned out something of a classic in his picture "Les Misérables," it is a matter of experience. This Polish soldier of fortune has been through the mill of an active life even more exciting than the stories he is called upon to direct. Mr. Boleslavski was a captain of Lancers before the war, and he played an important part in the separation of Poland from Russia. Grand Duke Nicholas had promised to free Poland, and for that reason the patriotic Richard fought like a wildcat. He also was a spy for a time, being involved in a number of incredible plots and counterplots. Naturally, this early experience went down in his memory book; he had felt drama in the raw.

It was not surprising, then, that he should turn to the stage in the form of the Moscow Art Theater. There he worked for artistic advancement and creative effort. As with so many of dramatic persuasion, he finally drifted to New York. Here he attached himself to what was called The Laboratory Theater. This was an organization started by Herbert Stockton. The idea was to do something, if not bigger, at least better. Art with a capital "A." The Laboratory Theater turned out some very good jobs in the couple of years it was operating, but did not pan out so well. However, through the theater Hollywood heard of Boleslavski and sent out its siren song of gold. The Pole answered the call with alacrity, and soon the one-time Lancer was marshaling movie actors instead of horsemen.

His pictures all seem to possess an authenticity not possible with a director who has lived the scenes he portrays. "Rasputin and the Empress" with the three Barrymores, was one of his outstanding efforts, and even that wild-eyed tale had nothing on Boleslavski's story. He is today full of enthusiasm and a strength of mind and being, which go to make him one of the most great after of movieland figures.

Different Belts on the Same Dress Give It the Variety of Separate Costumes

SHIRTINGS AND LACE

Copyright, 1935, by Patrichid.

By IRENE VAIL

New York — An outstanding success from the recent openings is a black crepe dress by Mainbocher. This is a plain little model in two-piece effect with a huge satin bow at back. This dress is liked for one reason, because varied belts may be worn with it. There is a tremendous interest in sashes and in other attractive belt and girdle ideas.

The outstanding success of the Lanvin collection is a full-skirted model, the hem of which is held out by cording, a similar cording being used at the waistline.

The prevalence of the period theme for evening goes on its graceful way. More and more full-skirted dresses are being worn, and necklines have charmingly reminiscent habits.

"Draped bows," "butterfly revers," "front fullness in the bodice"—all that you will—each phrase describes the treatment that persists through the Vionnet adaptations that are shown. The coat and wrap designer gives this new detail an impressive position in the second spring collections.

Sketched today, the costume at the left is developed in navy blue sheer crepe, the jacket in knuckle length, flaring easily from the neckline. The one-piece dress is simply fashioned, and attention is called to the shirred accents that provide the trimming interest.

The afternoon frock is fashioned of printed taffeta, while motifs on brown, and rows and rows of lace make a soft, fluffy trimming. The sectional treatment of the skirt and the flared line at the hem are important.

At right of the column, the nautical frock combines navy blue with red handkerchief lawn, the latter developing the yoke. The armholes are banded and pockets are arranged in a slanting line.

You and Your Child

FORCING CHILD TO EAT OFTEN BRINGS ILLNESS

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

FREDDY came to the dinner table when called. But this time there was no exclamation of "Lamb chop, oh boy!" or "Candy, yum, yum!" as it was his habit when certain favored dishes are served.

Mother put a helping of string beans on his plate. "Now get to work," she prompted good-naturedly. Then, "I was just going to bake the sweet potatoes plain, when I thought that you might enjoy a little treat tonight."

Freddy tasted of the sweet potatoes because he liked them best. He tried the lamb chop and then he sampled a few slivers of string bean. He did not bother to butter himself a slice of bread or sip his milk. And from time to time he gazed through the custard dessert and past it with unseeing eyes. He had no appetite.

"What's the matter, Freddy, don't you feel well?" Freddy put down his fork. "I'm not hungry mom." Mother came forward and felt his forehead, then she asked him to show his teeth. "Discovering that the boy was all right, she announced: 'The fine changes time is making in her. She is the one who realizes that bodily changes occur, and make it absurd for her to affect the colors and styles she used to wear with such charm and grace. She is the woman who accommodates herself to the changes time makes in her, and who gathers interest as she goes along.'

It is in the personal experience of most of us to know that these men are voicing truth. The woman who grows old gracefully is the one who does not try to be sixteen when she is twenty-six, nor to mention being twenty-six when she is sixty. She is the woman who accustoms herself to the changes time makes in her, and who gathers interest as she goes along.

Such a woman has no fear of age. Why should she have? She is not vain and silly enough to imagine that she can look as she used to, but she is vain enough to look her best, and what is more, to be at her best, no matter what her age may be.

Dr. Lorenz says he does not know he is old (he is 82) until his friends remind him of the fact. That is an experience common to most.

"What is life for?" Dr. Lorenz was asked, and he seemed not to hesitate in answering: "Life is to be enjoyed, and it is to help others that they may enjoy their lives equally. Myself, I enjoy anything. And if I should advise a young man I would say, 'Do miss anything, but moderate in everything.' The most agreeable thing in life, however, is to be able to do something to help your fellow man."

IT DOES seem that those who have a great capacity for enjoyment—and so, of course, get more out of life—do manage to retain something of youth even in middle, or after, life. An embittered, or soured, nature is bound to react unfavorably on the body. A dull eye is not as attractive as a bright one, nor does a grim mouth bespeak anything but age.

All women dread growing old, beautiful women most of all. To them it is a terrible tragedy unless they have the wit to see that it is necessary, both physically and figuratively, to put the best face one can on the matter. One's spiritual face needs lifting, too.

It's very wise to ignore age to cultivate a philosophy that will help meet it—since there's no coding the issue.

It does seem reasonable to believe that each phase of life has pleasures peculiar to it—not necessarily compensations for the lost pleasures of youth, either. It might very well be that one's appetite for life might bring a fuller flavor with the years.

Do you know the approved method for ironing shirts? First, wrong side of cuff, then right side of cuff, followed by pressing the under sleeve, the placket and the top. Repeat the process in ironing second sleeve. Now do the neck band, the yoke and the back. Lastly, the right front, left front and a few final finishing touches where the shirt shows.

A mother writes that her children do not eat enough fruit complaining, "And yet the fruit bowl is always full of fruit." In other words, she is taking a chance that the children will cultivate a taste for fruit from seeing it around. A more practical plan would be to serve some of this fruit as a part of the meal, either in a salad course or a fruit cup dessert.

Have You a Question? Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

A Man's Dish

This will appeal to the men. Melt a tablespoon of butter in the upper part of a double boiler or chafing dish. Add two cups of old English cheese, grated or pressed through a sieve. Stir until the cheese is melted and add one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and a few grains of cayenne. This is delicious served over crisp toast or crisp crackers. Serve a dish of pickles or mixed olives with the rabbit.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today Simplest Method of Cooking Meat Is the Most Delicious

By JUDITH WILSON

ASK any group of men or women how they like their meat prepared and you will find that broiling is the most popular. But how many of you know how to broil successfully? Broiling is no trick at all, if you know how to select the right cuts of meat. And it is really very little trouble. It is necessary to turn your meat only once as soon as it is richly browned on one side, turn and broil on the other and then reduce the heat until the meat has reached the desired state of doneness.

Tender cuts of steak such as porterhouse, sirloin, club and filet mignon are best suited for broiling. The meat should be well marbled with fat and of a clear color that indicates high-quality beef. Lamb cuts are most convenient, as any part of the lamb can be broiled. Inexpensive shoulder chops are popular and squares of meat cut from the shoulder, neck or breast are delicious "en brochette."

Ham and bacon may be broiled, but you shouldn't try broiling pork chops or veal. Veal is too dry and the flavor of pork should be developed by long, slow cooking.

Meat sundries—kidneys, sweet breads, liver and small squares of tripe are best prepared "en brochette," which simply means broiling on a skewer. Alternate the small pieces of meat with squares of bacon or salt pork for flavor and the necessary fat.

Skewers are metal wires about six inches long, pointed at one end and made with a loop at the other. Slip the bits of meat on skewers, allowing two to each person, lay over a baking pan and broil, turning frequently until the meat is evenly browned. The meat may also be broiled in a very hot oven, by standing the skewers upright in a large potato. By the time the bacon or salt pork is crisp and brown the small pieces of meat will be done.

Lamb Kidneys en Brochette

Trim the lamb kidneys and simmer for ten minutes in enough meat broth or salted water to cover. Drain, reserving the stock, and slice the kidneys. Arrange alternate slices of kidneys and bacon on skewers with mushrooms at each end. Dip the mushrooms in melted butter before putting on the skewers. Broil until the bacon is crisp and arrange the meat on crisp triangles of buttered toast. Cover with a sauce made from the stock in which the kidneys were cooked, well seasoned with salt and cayenne and thickened slightly.

Filet Mignon

Broil filets of beef until seared on one side. Turn out in mushroom caps that have been Veree Teasdale, of the films, knows how to furnish a living room for the most comfort. Backed by a carved wooden screen, she has placed the sofa, done in old gold plush, and trimmed with black. Two occasional lamps and two capacious easy chairs done in the modern manner, complete the picture.

BABY NRA IS ADOPTED BY ASSEMBLY

SACRAMENTO, May 7.—UP—Authorizing codes of fair competition for California industries, a "baby NRA" bill was approved by the Assembly today after sponsors defeated a motion for a day long debate. The vote was 62 to 14.

NEWSPAPERS EXEMPTED
Assemblyman Ford Clatter, Lindsay introduced the only acceptable amendment when he proposed exemption of newspapers from code provisions as a means of "insuring a continuation of freedom of the press."

Assemblyman William Mosley Jones sought unsuccessfully to modify this amendment to remove the exemption but provide that codes would apply only such as long as the constitutional freedom of the press was not suppressed.

AMENDMENTS DEFEATED
The long list of proposed amendments was headed by proposals to modify the measure. It applied to so-called "service industries" as a result of complaints from Southern California laundries and similar industries.

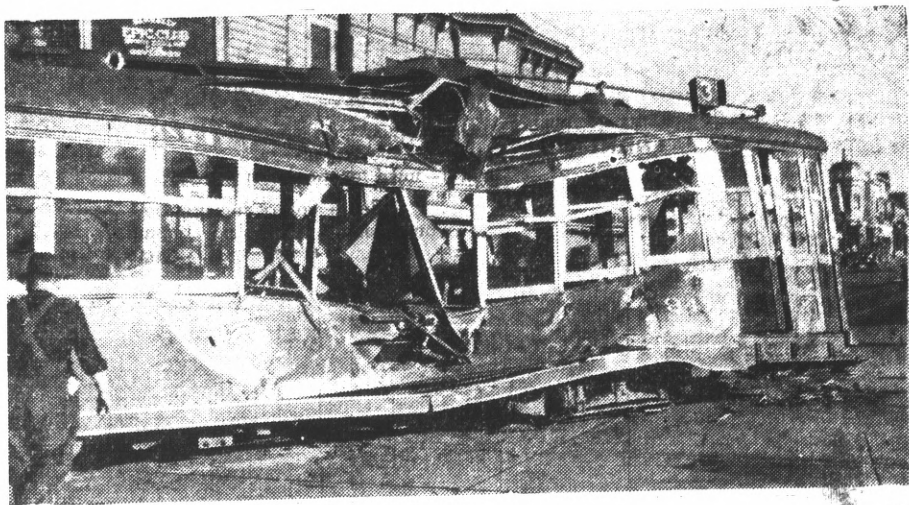

Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell, San Jose, also sought inclusion of a provision that would require application of representatives of two-thirds of an industry before a code was established rather than on application of a "representative number."

An attempt to exempt the "taking of fish and game" from provisions of the bill to prevent any grown from adopting a code that might supercede rulings of the fish and game commission also was defeated.

RECALL CHANGE LOSES
Meantime the Senate defeated by a vote of 31 to 9 a bill which would have prohibited circulation of recall petitions except from county courthouses, city halls or by deputies of city or county clerks.

PATMAN BILL IS PASSED BY SENATE

Representatives of the American Legion, who had been seated in a reserved gallery, left after the Vinson bill, which they were supporting, had been rejected.

THE DIFFERENT BILLS
Representatives of the American Legion, who had been seated in a reserved gallery, left after the Vinson bill, which they were supporting, had been rejected.

The Vinson bill called for issuance of bonds for immediate payment in full of the bonds. The Harrison measure would have paid the soldiers in cash or in negotiable bonds or would have given a premium to those who held their certificates until 1944—the original date of maturity.

DEFEAT NO SURPRISE
Defeat of the Harrison measure was no surprise, despite the fact that Harrison warned repeatedly that President Roosevelt would veto any other bonds bill.

Party leaders had conceded defeat. They sat back to permit the Senate to go through the motion of adopting a measure which makes a major clash between Mr. Roosevelt and Congress inevitable.

The Vinson bill lost by only three votes in the House, which adopted overwhelmingly the measure by Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, Texas, proposing to start the printing presses to meet the government's obligations to the veterans. Senator B. C. Clark, Democrat, Missouri, offered the Vinson substitute in the Senate.

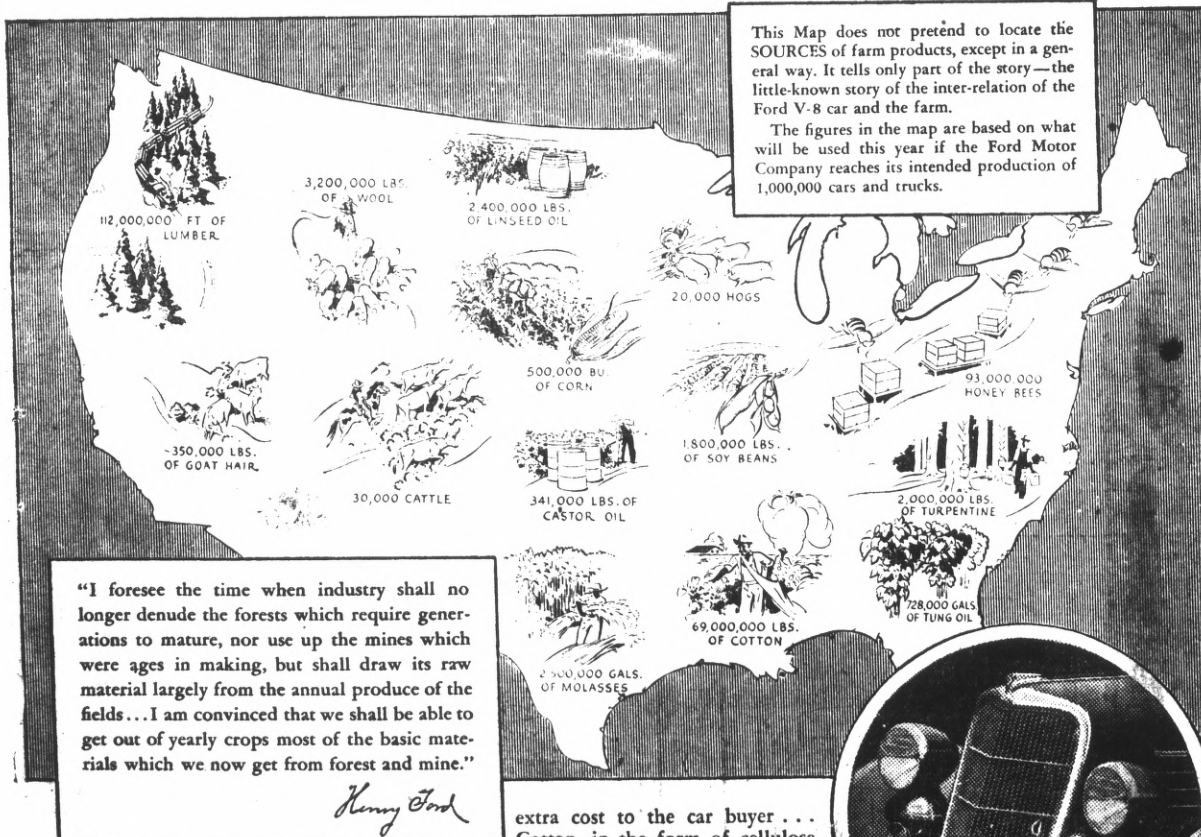

MRS. C. E. FRASIER and her daughter, Mrs. H. Boaz, plan to leave on Saturday on a visit to the East.

"I foresee the time when industry shall no longer denude the forests which require generations to mature, nor use up the mines which were ages in making, but shall draw its raw material largely from the annual produce of the fields... I am convinced that we shall be able to get out of yearly crops most of the basic materials which we now get from forest and mine."
